NATIONAL REPEAL BEARING RESULTS

Recent Check-Up Reveals Results Have Tended to Increase Drunkenness.

(Statement by the Consolidated Forces for Prohibition in Georgia, W. W. Gaines, chairman, Atlanta.)

Repeal, all over the nation, is resulting in increased consumption of liquor and, therefore, is working for intemperance.

It has greatly increased drinking and drunkenness. It has not in the least stopped bootlegging. It has greatly increased highway accidents brought the return of the saloon. It has increased crime. It has not brought prosperity to the country—more than 11,000,000 and more unemployed at this time, and the twice that number on relief notwithstanding the government has patterned given billions of dollars in aid of the distressed. You remember that prosperity was one of the blessings guaranteed the nation by the repealists in advance. And, too, repeal has not balanced the budget—the amount of revenue it has brought in has been but trifling when compared with the total expenses of the government.

The United States Treasury department is now greatly rejoicing over the increasing consumption of liquor by the people of the country. In a recent Associated Press dispatch, Stewart Berkshire, deputy commissioner of internal revenue, reported "distillers are now producing at the rate of 250,000,000 gallons of spirits a year, an 87 per cent increase over last year." He said that the "number of plants under the bureau's supervision had doubled."

Instead of this increase in drinking being a thing to rejoice in, to glory in, it is really a thing to be deplored by all thoughtful persons. An 87 per cent increase in liquor consumption means an 87 per cent increase in drinking and in drunkenness.

The federal government and the manufacturers and dealers in liquor would like to see a still greater increase than 87 per cent—the sky is their limit for liquor consumption. Their advertisements, running into the upper millions, show it.

Certainly, in the interest of temperance, liquor advertising should be prohibited. The manufacture and sale of liquor, the courts hold, is not a right inherent in property, but a privilege which may be extended or denied by the state.

The plan of the federal government, as well as of the manufacturers and dealers, is to make liquor not only abundant, but to make it cheap and easy to get. Now what Communist Berkeley further says in this same dispatch: "From now on there is going to be more good whiskey than ever before and the more good whiskey there is, the lower price, the easier it will be to collect the tax, and the harder for the bootlegger to compete with the liquor at the right price." In other words, eliminate the bootlegger by out-selling him and under-selling him.

This same dispatch says that a "nation-wide drive by 4,500 officers of the Internal Revenue Bureau is to be in full swing before the end of the month—a new campaign against bootleggers and liquor tax evaders." It also stated that 500 new officers had just been added to the force. The largest number of enforcement officers that the government ever had during the thirteen years of national prohibition was around 1,100. And even the salaries and expenses paid the 1,100 was sneered at by the liquor interests as an immense and back-breaking burden upon the people of America. Now, under repeal, with an enforcement army four times as large and four times as expensive, we see everywhere less effective enforcement.

Perhaps the ugliest thing about the federal government's attitude in the matter of intoxicating liquor, as well as the most significant, is that it sells liquor stamps, which are in effect liquor permits, in dry states to any person who asks for them, in the face of the solemn provision in the repeal amendment that the importation of liquor into dry states is expressly prohibited.

So that the joint program of the government and of the liquor interests is: "More Liquor, Cheaper Liquor, and Easier to Get."

What do we see in Georgia? National repeal has aggravated our own liquor situation—more drinking, more drunkenness, more highway accidents, more sympathetic enforcement.

And the legalizing of beer and wine has added fuel to the fire. Mayor James L. Key, of Atlanta, who probably had more to do with the legalizing of beer and wine in Georgia, than any other person, in a statement recently said that "the conditions under which beer and wine are sold in Atlanta are debauching the community's morals," that "there is absolutely no regulation, and many of these beer and wine saloons are being used merely as a blind to sell whiskey"—note that he calls them "saloons," there were to be no saloons ever allowed under the new liquor law, you know.

Do we want the floodgates of liquor opened in Georgia? On the contrary, we are sure that Georgia wants statewide, anti-liquor laws, and wants them enforced. And Georgians can have both of these things if only she sets her mind to have them.

THEY HAVE BEEN IN OUR MIND FOR MORE THAN A YEAR, AND WE HAVE OFTEN LISTENED TO A CONFERENCE OF BANK OFFICERS AND NOTED HOW THEY APPLIED THEM, ALMOST UNCONSCIOUSLY.

IT IS EASY FOR A BANKER TO GAMBLE WITH YOUR MONEY AND MINE—BUT HE HAS NO RIGHT TO DO IT. JUST THINK OF THIS—MORE THAN 2,000 PEOPLE HAVE ENTRUSTED THEIR MONEY TO THE SEA ISLAND BANK. ONE OUT OF EVERY THIRTEEN PEOPLE IN BULLOCH COUNTY HAS SAID IN EFFECT: "WE ARE PLACING MONEY IN YOUR BANK BECAUSE WE ARE CONFIDENT THAT YOU WILL SAFEGUARD IT FOR US."

WE APPRECIATE YOUR CONFIDENCE.

"BY THE WAY"

Washington, D. C., August 1, 1936.

"Social security" has sprung out of civilization's present travails like the daring young man on the flying trapeze. Governor Landor's acceptance speech rang with it. In grappling with the various problems before the American people he yearned, calmly, for a nation "in which the old wrong things are going out and the new right things are coming in" with implied reference to this issue. The Third party foursome blantly wove it aloft. And the national Democratic high command has made it their accepted policy yesterday, today and forever. With such men in such high places evidencing much love and protection for humanity there should soon be no such thing as "insecurity" in this country.

If he comes out of it alive, Claude G. Bowers, America's ambassador to Spain, equipped with first hand information, may be able to give us a more lucid account of the Spanish revolt than anyone else. Based on facts gleaned from old records he produced the greatest book ever written on the reconstruction days of the South. "The Tragic South" is an acknowledged masterpiece that eventually may find its place among the classics. Caught in the throes of this other strife, Bowers' receptive mind will doubtless take in many important details escaping the attention of less astute observers, particularly news agents in the exercise of their "freedom of the press" privilege.

Absentee voters residing in the nation's capital will have no excuse for not voting in the general elections this fall. Both major parties have corralled crews and set up offices here to round up electors by letter, telephone or personal call. There is simply no avoiding them. Special arrangements for transportation made for those who must go home to register. Records are being kept in these partisan bureaus of each voter's activities. The hope prevails that there may be a general rejuvenescence of suffrage fads. Demonstrations are approximately 146,000. Erratic absentee voters in the district, and it has been tacitly given out that the Republican count is just as great.

China is in the throes of a civil war. The two populous provinces in the south and southern part of that country have come to grips with the central government under Generalissimo Chiang-Kai-Shek, who is preventing cessation and dismemberment of the country. The revolters claim that Chiang is not sincere in his opposition to Japanese invasion of China. It is curious to note that the Japanese army and navy are conspicuous in the situation. It is suspected by many close observers that both Chinese sides will lose to Japan after they have mutually neutralized each other. Japan has been trying to ferment local trouble in southeastern China as a part of her policy of conquest under the banner of "Divide and Rule."

Admiral Richard Byrd, America's premier explorer, has flown across the oceans and visited both the North and South Poles, has revealed his future plans. Except two years during which he will do some explorations, he will devote the rest of his life to the promotion of peace and friendship between the nations of the earth in an effort to help do away with war. He said he made his decision during the long, lonely months of vigil in the Antarctic when he was on the verge of death. He immersed himself in thoughts, and as inevitable demise he made that vow of service to mankind if he should survive. Admiral Byrd calls war the folly of follies.

The Oxford group is a new religious movement headed by Frank Buchman in which many leading persons in England and America are already enlisted. It is non-sectarian. It aims to put dynamic Christianity into actual practice. It seeks to create in the minds of people a better sense of human values, less selfishness, more confidence in each other, more real brotherly love, and more mutual good-will and understanding among and between the peoples of the world. Close communion with God and carrying out His directions with zeal and pride are inspired in those who join the Oxford group.
